

COURAGE A GREAT ASSET AND GAME SHOWING OF W. AND J. TEAM A TRIBUTE TO ITS COACH

METZGER'S PERSONALITY REFLECTED IN WASH AND JEFF'S UPHILL FIGHT WITH COACH WARNER'S PITT ELEVEN

Even Off Gridiron Courage of W. and J. Tutor Is Well Known, Displaying Rare Nerve Once When Forced to Have Broken Leg Set Twice

WHEN the Washington and Jefferson football team came out to battle Pitt in the last full Saturday, it was noticed that the players no longer seemed slow and listless, but active, aggressive and anxious to get things started.

"Metzger must have been talking to them," said one of the sideline habitués. "He probably has injected some of his own fighting spirit into the men."

Sol certainly made a strong appeal for every man went back into the game to do or die. There wasn't a quitter on the team, and this in a way brings out one of the characteristics of the coach.

A blow like that is likely to take the nerve out of any one, but Metzger was an exception. He started out to find a specialist who could perform a difficult operation, and after traveling almost a week discovered one in his home town, Bedford, Pa.

THAT is why Metzger is able to instill the fighting spirit into his men. He knows what a game man can do and can talk to his players better than any one else.

Good Field Generals Are Scarce This Year

WITH a capable quarterback in command of a team, the efficiency of the attack increases at least 50 per cent. A man who knows enough football to give the proper signal at the proper time without working one man to death is invaluable; but unfortunately there are few wearing the monkey's skin this year.

Last year Bell was criticized many times because of his play and many wondered why he was kept on the team. Some said it was because of a strong "pull," and many other reasons were assigned.

Bell is a natural leader. He knows what his men can do and expects them to do it. He constantly is studying the other team and when he gives a signal it is not from memory, but because it is the best play to be used in that particular spot.

BELL never overlooks a single bet while running the team. One day last year in a big game he rattled off the signal and when the ball was snapped shouted: "Run wide, Berry! Run wide!"

Football Coach Tearfully Tells How Hard It Is to Develop a Team

SOME football coaches are having a tough time in getting a team together this fall. Most of them are taking their medicine and suffering in silence like Dick Harlow up at State, but occasionally one breaks into print with a prolonged howl about the terrible conditions he is facing.

"My team this fall is a little light. All of last season's backfield are in the army and all of the linemen are in the navy. Or maybe it's the other way around. I only know they are not to be seen on the squad this year.

"I am framing up a few new trick plays for the team and the boys are all worked up over them. They think the new plays are scrumptious. The man carrying the ball is to wear a blue silk sweater trimmed at the neck and cuffs with fox fur and with a border of dull blue velvet at the bottom.

"This ain't no tea party," he remarked in cutting tones and with irony in his voice. "This ain't no tea party, but you can't prove it. Now, listen, go out and shake hands with that guy and then beat him in the jaw. But be sure you shake hands."

Cupid Black's Team Seems to Be the Real Class This Year

THE highly "informal" football team stationed at Newport, R. I., seems to be the class of the country this year. Cupid Black, the former Yale leader, has a wonderful bunch of athletes playing with him, and thus far they have gone through the season without meeting defeat.

THE All-American football disease is breaking out, but Daniel, in the New York Sun, has beaten all of the other critics to it. His selections follow: "It is almost time for the annual All America and All Everything selections to make their appearance and we thought we'd beat the bunch to it.

"They're all whites except Kwan—he's Chinese. Should you want a little black, Robinson, of Rutgers at end. For a little red, add Ojilway, of Carleton, at the nose. Kravies, of Wisconsin, Zohf, of Notre Dame, Povah, of Holy Cross, and West Virginia Wesleyan, are available for substitutes. They're all white and mighty good football, and they're all Americans, too."

IT HAPPENS IN THE BEST REGULATED FAMILIES

FRANKIE M'MANUS GETS SIGNALS FROM THE SIDELINES AND FLATTENS HIS FOE WHILE MR. GUNNIS CHEERS

Bobby's Most Recent Battler Scores Second Consecutive Knockout at Olympia in Feature Bout. Joe Tuber Again Shows His Class

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL. "NOW listen," said Bobby Gunnis, from his seat on the side lines, along with Harry Blanke, Al Post and other prominent citizens who helped defray the expenses of the government with their voluntary contributions.

Frankie M'Manus, one of the most recent additions to the Gunnis stable who was about to go forth and battle with Mr. Stanley Willis, a native of Detroit, Mich. Mr. Gunnis seemed quite interested in the regular, but his kind heart and humane instincts forced him to admonish his brother to be sweet and gentle and do nothing but knock his adversary out of the ring or beat his brains out or something like that.

Frankie follows orders. Frankie, however, divined the innermost thoughts of his most recent manager and faithfully tried to make the evening as pleasant as possible for him.

Mr. Willis blocks. Frankie followed instructions. He shook hands just to show there were no hard feelings and then proceeded to smother his trusty right all over Mr. Willis's crimson nose.

"Crash! The blow landed flush on the whiskers and bang! Stanley hit the dust. Mr. Gunnis breathed a huge sigh of relief while Pat O'Brien counted up forty and when Willis stood helpless against the ropes, his hands flapping loosely at his sides and a glassy stare in his eyes, the referee decided that the battle had gone far enough. It was stopped then and there and Frankie was sent to his room.

Mr. Willis blocks. Frankie followed instructions. He shook hands just to show there were no hard feelings and then proceeded to smother his trusty right all over Mr. Willis's crimson nose.

SPORT ENCOURAGED AMONG TROOPS HAS PROMOTED MORALE OF MEN AS WELL AS HELPING THEM BODILY

If Athletics and Recreation Were Abandoned by Civilians There Would Be a Quick Depreciation of Civilian Morale

By GRANTLAND RICE Above the Drumfire Over the roar of the guns Where even the far hills reel, Under the shifting suns That flash on the sweep of steel, There's the ghost of a song that lingers And seeps to a clear refrain, And this is the message it gives— "They have not battled in vain."

SPORT is encouraged and developed among troops back of the front lines, not only for physical development, but to help psychologically in the way of nerves. Which has nothing to do with "nerve."

So it is essential, wherever possible, that sport should be carried on. In Regard to Sport War, in the actual fighting, is more like football or boxing. Nervous energy here is a big factor.

Not a single member of the Phillies has as yet joined the colors. Several of the Morans were called for examination, but were exempted. Among those expected to be called in the next draft are Grover Cleveland Alexander and Bill Killefer, the greatest battery of the day.

Merion Golfer in Semifinals. LINDENHURST, N. C., Nov. 12.—The Carolina golf tournament was brought down to the semifinals yesterday. J. V. Webster, of the Merion Cricket Club, defeated S. A. Henderson, of Conestoga. The other first division survivors are Franklin Gates, of Broad Acres, and J. D. Armstrong, of Craton.

CHANDLER SIX Asking You To PAY More Wouldn't GIVE You More A THREAT to add two or three hundred dollars to the price of the car better. And actually adding to the price wouldn't make it better. The definite Chandler policy, consistently followed throughout the history of the Chandler Company, keeps Chandler value highest and Chandler price lowest.
